Dear Editors and Media-Partners, dear Musiclovers,

The name Roger Tarry, singer-songwriter from Bristol, has been synonymous with tender bittersweet melancholy since 2002. With the backing of Ben Goode (Bass), Chris Lewis (Drums) and Toby Field (Piano) the debut-album "Last Time I Was There" was recorded at Riverside Studios, Bath, in 2005, engineered and produced by Seb Pecchia.

'Last Time I Was There' is characterized by careful arrangements and a delicate narrative. Roger Tarry's guitarwork and his vocals blend with melodies full of melancholy and Alison Gillies' sensitive cello.

Roger Tarry took his songs to steadily growing audiences at clubs and festivals throughout the UK. Airplay on local and national radio resulted in the use of his song "Walk With Me" for the 4. season of "Dawson Creek". In 2006 recordings for a Nick Drake documentary followed and the album will be released on the English dandyland partner-label Pink Hedgehog (www.pinkhedgehog.com) on the same day as in Germany.

Following the release of "Last Time I Was There", Roger Tarry will tour Germany for the first time in autumn.

Roger Tarry's debut "Last Time I Was There" will be released in Germany on dandyland (www.dandyland.de) on 29th September 2006.

Further information, interview, pictures and tour dates can be downloaded at www.dandyland.de and Roger Tarry will be available for interviews. We would be pleased if you reviewed the album or featured it in any other way. Could you please send sample-copies to the address below.

Thanks

On the Album:

"Singer-songwriter Roger Tarry released his debut solo album last September. "Last Time I Was There" is a collection of 12 acoustic, poignantly wistful songs. All have their own individual characteristics and charms, yet work together to form a well crafted, beautifully accomplished album."
